Not much is known of the Russian preparations.

Prince Menschikoff, in person, will conduct the defence of Sebastopol. He attaches great importance to Forts Oczakoff and Kherson, and about a thousand men are ongared in strengthening these places. Consider the inscription.

Kherson, and about a thousand men are can gared in strengthening those places. Continual reinforcements arrive at Odessa and pass on. 60,000 men are said to be in camp, besides a full garrison in the city.

A new levy of ten men in every thousand throughout the Wostern part of the Russian Empire has been made.

There are strange rumors that the French Admiral Hamedin strongly opposed the expedition against Sebastops; that Marshal St. Arnsud takes the sole responsibility; and that scaled orders were on their way from France to discontinue it. But this may be all rumor.

Rumors.—The Paris correspondent of the New York Uribone asserts that a large loan to Russia has been taken through the agency of the American Minister at the Hague, Mr. Belmont, for his father and uncles, the Brothers Rothschilds. Also, that at the council held in Paris convened by Hon Dudley Mann, and attended by Messrs. Mason, Platt, Belmont received percentages and explicit directions to demand the Payment of $100,000 to Capt. Gibson, by the Dutch Government, within the period of ten days. The same correspondent adds that a political combination has just taken place on that side of the Atlantic, with a view of electing Mr. Buchanan President of the United States in 1856. This combination consists of Messrs. Buchanan, Sickles and Helmont.
